Transcript: Lee Bourgeau, Nez Perce, 2002
Unit: Animals (Middle and High School)

My little grandsons now they're just little guys, four and five, and my two sons take them out. Every year they go on a hunting trip, and that trip is especially to take the little ones with them. And when they go, they talk about how this brother, this moose or the elk or the deer, is sacrificing himself to give to us. And so whenever they make a kill, they teach the boys to pray. They pray and they thank the creator, and they give thanks to the brother that has sacrificed [himself], or the sister, to give us food, to give us clothing, and they teach them the songs.